Fundamental Investing Principles

- It is prudent that you do not invest all your funds in a single basket. Diversification will allow you to spread your risks.
- Be aware of your overall financial situation and keep track of your allowances, expenditure and savings.
- Establish a summary of your short, medium and long term financial goals and know your risk tolerance to determine which investment products are suitable. It is good to invest early and in securities with good fundamentals.
- Be familiar with trading rules and trading terms. You will find it easier to communicate with your trading representative and understand research reports and financial statements.

Basic Information of Shares Trading

Securities Market/Exchange

- A securities market is a place or a facility (whether electronically or otherwise) by which, offers or invitations to sell, purchase or exchange securities are done on a centralised basis.
- Exchange means the Singapore Exchange [SGX] or any other market or organisation (whether an exchange, association, body corporate or otherwise) responsible for administering a market in securities or futures contracts, commodities, options, derivatives or any other financial instrument whose contracts are cleared by, or novated to the Central Depository [CDP].

Shares

- Shares form a part of the definition of securities as described in the Securities and Futures Act ["SFA"] (refer to MAS website <http://www.mas.gov.sg>)

Board Lot

- Designated trading size for each company listed on the SGX
- Minimum order size is 1 board lot. Orders may be in multiples of board lot(s)
- In SGX Ready Market, the board lot is usually 1,000 shares, but for certain counters such as Creative Technology, the board lot is designated as 50 shares; Singtel has board lots of 10 shares, 100 shares and 1,000 shares.

Odd Lot

- refers to a quantity that is less than a board lot and trading is in the Unit Share Market
 - As an example, for a buy order of 1,060 ABC shares, 1,000 shares may be executed in the Ready Market and the remaining 60 shares in the Unit Share Market.
- Trades will be automatically amalgamated if done in the Ready and Unit Share Market on the same day, same action ie. buy/sell, same counter and same payment type.

Risks Associated with Shares Trading

- 1 Trading in shares can be extremely risky. The prices of shares can and do fluctuate, sometimes dramatically, and may become valueless. You should be prepared to lose all of the funds used for trading in shares. You should not fund your share trading activities with emergency funds or funds set aside for purposes such as education or home ownership.
- 2 In the case of shares of smaller companies (sometimes known as "penny shares"), there may be a greater risk of loss because there may proportionately be a large difference between the buying price and the selling price of these shares. If the shares have to be sold immediately, you may get back much less than the amount that you paid for them.
- 3 Under certain market conditions you may find it difficult or impossible to liquidate a position. This may arise from rules in certain markets (for example, the rules of a particular exchange may provide for "circuit breakers" where trading is suspended or restricted at times of rapid price movements).
- 4 Most trading facilities are supported by computer-based component systems for the order-routing, execution, matching, registration or clearing of trades. Disruption or failure in the electronic trading facilities could disrupt trading and the liquidity and availability of timely execution or reporting could diminish substantially.

- 5 For security reason, you are to safekeep your user identification (UserID), password and Second Factor Authentication (2FA) token to prevent unauthorised computer entry by someone other than yourself. You are solely responsible for all transactions made online under your UserID.
- 6 Where you transact shares denominated in currencies other than in Singapore dollar, or when you convert funds from another currency upon making a transaction, there is a risk that the foreign exchange rates may move against you.
- 7 Before you begin to trade, you should obtain a clear explanation of all transaction costs (i.e. commissions, fees and other charges charged by Lim & Tan Securities Pte Ltd) the clearing house and the securities exchange. These charges will affect your net profit or increase your loss. You should consider these costs in your risk assessment.
- 8 It is essential that you are able to discern the information that is available to you and do not be swayed by opinions, especially from unreliable sources. Make your own judgement call when you read investment materials and understand the concepts and strategies before applying them. Making rash decisions, especially short term speculations, can be very risky.
